Life Group Discussion Questions

This month in LifeGroup, we are encouraging you to use the following format for your time together. It works best when everyone has listened to the message from Sunday (either in person or online), and has followed along in the readings during the week. When you get together, after catching up, snacking, and socializing, shift into discussion of the scriptures or message using the following three symbols: Lightbulb, Question Mark, and Arrow.

The Lightbulb is used to represent something that sheds light, either on that passage of Scripture or the message. So someone may say, "I have a lightbulb on this verse. It describes a situation that happened to me at work last week..."

The Question Mark, obviously signifies something we don't understand. A person might say, "I have a question mark on this verse/point of the sermon. What does it mean when it says...?"

The Arrow represents God piercing a person's heart - s/he has heard from God and needs to do something about it. Someone may say, "God has been speaking to me about this for a while, but I've been ignoring it. I'm going to have to change..." Or, "I've just realized that God wants me to..."

Start with one symbol, and go around the room and allowing each person to share their insight. When everyone is done, move on to the next one. These discussion tools function differently than a traditional "Bible study," and allow room for the Holy Spirit to speak and minister to those in your group through vulnerability and insights. Don't worry if you don't have "profound" insights, just be willing to share what God is doing in your life and leave the rest up to Him!

These methods have been taken and adapted from the book, The Rabbit and the Elephant, by Tony & Felicity Dale
